I P T A Y — the life-blood of Clemson Athletics

Prior to IPTAY (I Pay Ten A Year), piece-meal contributions from alumni and alumni groups toward the support of Tiger athletics was a haphazard affair at best. In 1932, IPTAY was born and has grown from 161 members in 1933 to approximately 2600 this year.

On January 1, 1947, Walter Tilley, Jr., class of 1930, joined the athletic staff as Assistant Athletic Director, to handle IPTAY and the business matters for the Athletic Association. In a program of reorganization, IPTAY has shown a steady, increasing growth, until today the Tigers can offer a large number of scholarships to worthy athletes. For in IPTAY lies the financial support toward the goal of having outstanding players.

THE BOSS!

Eighteen years ago, Frank Howard stepped from a first string guard position on Alabama's Rose Bowl team into the line coach position with the Clemson College Tigers and 9 years later (1940), he moved up to the top coaching spot at Tigertown.

A sound fundamentalist, in his four years as a player under Coach Wallace Wade and nine years as an assistant coach under Jess Neely, Howard carefully examined football's latest offensive innovation, the T-formation, and decided to stick by the single wing attack — with Howard modifications.

Born at Barlow Bend, Alabama, on March 25, 1909, Howard's eight-year record as head coach at Clemson has netted him 36 games won, 34 games lost, and tied 3. The teams have scored 1339 points, and have given up to their opponents 1052. These figures were effective at the beginning of the 1948 season.

WITHOUT forts or camps or military stimulants of any sort in the Anderson area, THE INDEPENDENT and MAIL have a record of progress and circulation growth that leads the entire Palmetto State! Two Hundred and Twelve Percent Gain in auditable circulation in ten years! (1937-1947)

A tribute to Unexcelled Newspaper Quality and Service, and the steady growth of the Anderson Market — with a purchasing power of nearly SIXTY MILLION annually. This is truly a QUALITY MARKET, which stands above the national average, Anderson is where Agriculture and Industry Meet!

America's blue ribbon newspapers are published in Anderson. They were the first in the South to be selected for readership studies by Northwestern University.

They were awarded the University of Missouri plaque for the greatest community service TWICE — 1941 and 1944 — the only U. S. newspapers that have been so honored.

They were awarded the Editor & Publisher Blue Ribbon for writing and publishing the best advertisement in the U. S., 1941.

In 1943, NEA awarded them the top honor for circulation promotion and carrier salesmen welfare.

They were the first South Carolina papers to publicize the State's natural resources via radio.

They were the first newspapers in the Southeast to be designed for easy reading by Gilbert Farrar.

Success Story Plus

By J. A. MEDWIN, Furman University Athletic Publicity Director

Here's a story that concerns itself with two Furman football teams, particularly about Herman "Red" Smith, the present Hurricane coach, and evolves around two football yarns. It goes like this.

Furman's last and only previous encounter with Washington and Lee, prior to this year, was back in 1925 when the Hurricane entered the Generals territory in an attempt to out-maneuver the top-heavy favorite FFV's. Well, come game time the field was a quagmire of ankle-deep mud, due to some previous unfriendly weather, and the saddle-artist Virginians proved to be the better mudders as they sloughed through the slosh to gain the upper hand at half time to the tune of 15-0. The rabid rooters of W.&L., in a fit of frenzied fervor over the prospects of inevitable victory, swarmed on the field at half time and gave vent to their feelings in the form of a rousing snake dance. All this despite the slippery underfooting, too. This bit of enthusiasm proved to be their undoing, however, for as the story goes, Billy Laval, the then Furman skipper, detected the tramped-down snake-trails, and gave orders for his backs to follow these paths. Literally snake-hip their way goalward, as it were. The result? You guessed it. Those Furman lads followed that strategy so well that they scored 20 points during the second half to even 20-15 over the much-chagrined Generals. That's how Furman scored its first victory over W. & L. — according to the yarn, that is.

Well, Red Smith, one of Furman's all-time athletic greats, played in this game — as a matter of fact, was one of its star tackles. But let's shift the scene to 1948 — Furman is again playing a favored W. & L. team at Lexington. Red Smith's role is considerably different this time — he's making his debut as Furman's head football coach. But here is where the second yarn comes in. Putting up at Natural Bridge Hotel, 12 miles from Lexington, the Furman squad worked out on an abandoned golf-course the afternoon prior to the game, rather than go into town and be subjected to over-curious onlookers. It wasn't a particularly adequate place to work-out in, rather knee-deep in weeds. A real rural retreat, as it were. In keeping with the atmosphere, a few rabbits were flushed, and the boys proceeded to take playful rock pot-shots at the scampering speedsters. But true-armed George Pruitt, pass-pitching ace and quarterback, actually winged a cotton tail and took as his prize a left-hind foot. Well, at least that's what they say. The result this time? Well, it was this same Pruitt who scooted for the winning touchdown from the 10 yard line with three minutes to play to climax an uphill struggle and allow Furman to win 10-7, after being behind 3-7 since the opening quarter — a repetition of the 1925 victory.

Not long afterward, Red Smith reminisced about both victories. "Do y'know", he wistfully exclaimed "back in 1925 when we walked across that bridge at Lexington on our way back to the gym after the game, I felt good. But let me tell you, when I walked over that same bridge this time, 23 years later, I felt very, very much better, because it was a thrill to pull that out of the fire once again." And who can blame him? But was it fate, destiny, or just sheer luck that contributed in making history repeat itself?

I'll let you decide that one.

Football Fans Are Crazy People

By PAUL BARRETT, Sportswriter for The Greenville Piedmont

If you're sitting here in the stands with all the distracting — and perhaps attractive sights around you trying to read this, you're just another point in my argument. If you carry the program home with you and read it, you may be the exception that proves the rule.

I still think football fans are crazy.

Chances are that on this afternoon of the Clemson-Furman game you may just as well be sitting out on these cold seats with a 45-degree wind whipping around, a chilly rain descending upon you, snowflakes drifting about your shivering head or a non-November sun making you take off your new topcoat or that mink (?) you worried the old man until he brought you.

There's another point: why do folks put on their best clothes to see 22 young behemoths wallow over the ground, often muddy, just to obtain possession of a misshapen piece of pork skin that won't even bounce in any reasonable manner?

Betcha the wife has on her best suit, maybe a new hat, and a pair of shoes that are all straps and thongs that don't keep feet warm, dry or anything else except exposing all the nylon possible. Or the husband has on his best Sunday hat and suit.

Somebody, no doubt, will spill coke or mustard thereon or the fellow behind you will get excited and beat you over the head or step on the hem of your coat. Maybe he's a Furman man and you a Clemsonite, or vice versa, and pretty soon your opposite views will make words absolutely useless and you'll resort to wild but effective marksmanship. Effective, that is, in that it brings the state troopers down on you.

Somebody else will assume that his capacity for the fruit of the grape is greater than the creator made it to be. And he'll eventually find that four teams are playing and two men are running with the ball and that he owns the whole stadium. So he proceeds to claim it. He shells out three bucks for a ticket, the same amount for some roses (Four, that is) and one purchase nullifies the other.

As to the weather you'll remember other Clemson-Furman games when it has rained, poured, sprinkled and snowed. Days there have been when the temperature was lower than the spirits of the losing team. Remember those snowy afternoons when first the Purple Hurricane was scheduled to win or the Tigers were rated as easy victors and the underdog rose up and smacked the favorite in the chin?

That was in the pre-war days when rivalries were more keen possibly than now and when the Kings, the McFaddens, the Shetleys, the Timmons, and the Scotts roamed the gridiron.

Or do you remember that afternoon you got blistered in the old Riggs Field stands watching a sleeping Tiger batter into submission a Deacon from Wake Forest who was rated as the biggest headline snatcher to come out of North Carolina in years? That was about 1940, wasn't it, and the score about 40 to 6?

That brings to mind the little differences that make families rise up in arms. Take Mrs. X as a typical wife. She considers that she has an intuition just as good as any woman's. So why not put it to use? She does and picks the probable winner, offering to bet a trivial thing like a steak dinner (trivial that is for the Rockefellers) on the outcome of the game.

If she wins, she's to be pardoned for roasting her husband. And if she loses, she's to be condoned in feeling preyed upon by her husband. And why did he have to wear that hideous tie anyway? So for a few hours, or maybe days the X household is divided because of that steak dinner — or the loss of it.

The string is endless. If Furman loses, the Purple Hurricane fans think Red Smith should have played his cards differently and don't mind saying so. If the Tigers get beat, Frank Howard should be fired and that stupid halfback's scholarship sliced, Bengal boosters believe.

Either way somebody loses, either the team, the coaches or half the fans.

And to go through all these possibilities, people with the average amount of what is sometimes mislabeled "common sense", sit through the rain, the sleet and the snow to watch two hours of pushing up and down a 100-yard field.

Yet if I weren't sitting up in this neat, dry press box above you, I'd probably be right there beside you, getting just as wet, just as disgusted and just as noisy as you.

But I still think football fans are crazy. Aren't they?

The aerial view above is of Excelsior Mills at Clemson—and within four miles of here, is the newest and latest plant, the Gerrish Milliken Mill. These mills represent only a small part of more than fifty million dollars which has been invested in new machinery during the last seven years by mills associated with Deering, Milliken & Co., Inc. We take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the Clemson graduates who have played such an important part in making the operation of this equipment successful.
